∞ About Earmarks ∞

BEFORE the era of wire and other modern fencing, sheep and cattle left out to graze often strayed. The stone walls or wooden fences that commonly separated fields did not always keep the animals at home. There was also the Common where the animals of several different owners might graze together.

If you have visited Sturbridge Village or another such simulation of an early community, you have seen the "pound"—a sort of enclosure or corral where stray animals were kept until their owners reclaimed them.

I suppose the earmark goes back for many hundreds of years. The earmark served much the same purpose as the brand used by ranchers of the West. Instead of a scar left by the burn of the branding iron, the animals had notches clipped from their ears.

Below is the mark assigned to one of my great-great-grandfathers. I copied this as faithfully as I could from Book I of Petersburg records.

limits of the Patent of Rensselaerwyck, was at Kinderhook, where there appears to have been some few dwellers as early as 1650.¹ The Indian trail eastward from Fort Orange passed through this settlement, and Westenhook or Housatonic, and thence over the mountains to Springfield, and so on to Massachusetts Bay. It was known to the Dutch as "the New England path" and to dwellers in the Connecticut valley as "the Bay path."

Among the settlers at Kinderhook before 1700 were Conraet Borghghardt² and Elias Van Schaak or Scoick, who were extensively engaged in the fur trade with the natives eastward along the New England path. They were both conversant with the native language, and undoubtedly became acquainted with the valley of the Housatonic at a very early period, as it lay at a distance of not more than a day's journey from Kinderhook. In the spring of 1717, Borghghardt and Van Schaak made application to the Governor of New York for a license to purchase 4,000 acres of land comprised in a tract lying southeast of the patent which had been granted to the inhabitants of Kinderhook in 1683, and west of the limits of the Westenhook patent.³ The land was duly laid out by the government surveyor in the fall of the same year,⁴ but was immediately claimed by Henry Van Rensselaer as he alleged by virtue of a prior patent,⁵ a claim which led to a controversy the ultimate results of which were far from unimportant.

In order to understand the mutual relations of the different land patents in this region granted prior to 1720, it will be necessary to refer briefly to their histories. In 1682, a tract of land previously purchased from the native owners in behalf of the proprietor or patroon of Rensselaerwyck, was confirmed to Stephen Van Cortland, director of the manor or colony. This tract, known as Potkook, was described in the Indian deed as extending along the river from a certain kill north of Claverack, to a kill called Wagan-kassek, eastward "half a day's journey" to the "high woodland" Wawanaquasik, and

1. The Kinderhook tract was purchased from the Indians, Aug. 14, 1668, and patented in part by Gov. Dongan to Jan Hendrick De Bruyn, Dec. 16, 1686. The Kinderhook patent proper was granted by Gov. Nicolls, Mar. 14, 1687. - New York Archives, Book vi, Patents, pp. 154-156.

2. CONREAT BORGHGHARDT was born about 1677, and was one of the early inhabitants of Kinderhook. He may have been a native of Holland. He is mentioned as a prominent citizen of K. in 1702, and in 1720, and appears to have lived near the river, north of Kinderhook creek, in what is now Stuyvesant. In 1717 he became in a dispute with Van Rensselaer in respect to land titles, and doubtless as a result of this, allied himself with the interests of the New England settlers in the Housatonic valley. Being well acquainted with the Indians and conversant with their language and customs, he was employed by the settling committee in 1724, to negotiate the purchase of the lands forming the southern portion of Berkshire county. He had a large family of sons and daughters, and about 1724, he removed to the Housatonic settlement bringing his family with him. His homestead occupied a site about fifteen rods south of the Sedgwick Institute in Great Barrington, but he owned besides, several hundred acres of the best lands now within Great Barrington and Egremont. He was a man of great intelligence, enterprise, and public spirit, as well as of sturdy integrity, and judging from his autograph, was a man of good education for those times. The maiden name of his wife was Gesie Van Wye. Their descendants are still numerous in southern Berkshire, although the name is now commonly written as Burghardt or Burget. Mr. Borghghardt died about 1750, and was undoubtedly buried in the vicinity of others of his family in the south burial ground at Great Barrington. It is to be regretted that no suitably inscribed monument perpetuates the memory of this sturdy patriarch, who may fairly be entitled to be called the founder of the Housatonic colony. For many interesting particulars of his life see Taylor's History of Great Barrington, 107-110.

northward to the before mentioned kill of Claverack.¹ Wawanaquasik² is to this day a well-known landmark, situated between nine and ten miles from the river, "where the Indians have laid several heaps of stone together by ancient custom used among them."³ A north line from this point to Claverack creek would have included some 23,000 acres. Van Rensselaer's agents however, perhaps by calling in the aid of a long-distance pedestrian of surpassing ability, extended the "half-day's journey" no less than 24 miles, to the confluence of the Housatonic and Green rivers, and then claimed to a line extending thence to the source of Kinderhook creek, in what is now Hancock, embracing not only the greater part of the present county of Columbia, but a considerable section of southwestern Berkshire. By means of this barefaced fraud, some 175,000 acres of land which had never been purchased from the Indians at all, were included in the survey and consequently within the limits of the patent granted by Governor Dongan in 1683.⁴ This patent was thereafter known as the Claverack or lower manor, but by the terms of the grant, the inhabitants were not subject to the feudal conditions of the upper manor or colony of Rensselaerwyck.⁵ Killiaen Van Rensselaer, to whom the Claverack manor descended by entail, conveyed it in 1704 to his brother Hendrick from whom it passed to his eldest son John,⁶ who ultimately found it a most vexatious and troublesome inheritance. It appears therefore that the Van Rensselaer patent of 1683 was the earliest grant embracing any portion of the territory within the Housatonic valley.

Among the officials at Albany at this period was a shrewd and enterprising young Scotchman

2. Wawanaquassick, "where the heaps of stones lye," has its plural in wa-wa; wa signifies "good;" quas is "stone" or "stones," and ick "place." (Ruttenber's Indians of Hudson's River, 373.) This landmark is first mentioned in the deed of confirmation given to Stephen Van Cortland by four Indians on the 13th of Oct. 1682, for the tract afterwards called the Claverack Manor. (Holgate's Amer. Genealogy, 38) And again in the patent of Livingston, granted by Governor Dongan. (Doc. Hist. New York, iii, 624.) It now marks an angle in the boundary between the townships of Claverack and Taghkanick, Columbia county, New York. It was common among the aborigines to erect these commemorative heaps of stones, it being an immemorial custom among them, for each person passing to add his contribution to the pile. No satisfactory explanation of the origin or reason for the custom has ever been given. The Indians were often questioned as to it, but were invariably reluctant to talk about it. There were many of these monuments in different places, and it is not likely that they were intended for boundaries. They have invariably located alongside a trail or much traveled path, and usually, though not always, near a spring or stream of water. For further information on this subject with accounts of different monuments, see the narrative of Gideon Hawley, Indian missionary, in Doc. Hist. New York, iii, 630; Taylor's Hist. Great Barrington, 43-48; Dwight's Travels, ii, 382.

A warrant for the survey of this tract for Hendrick Van Rensselaer is in New York Land Papers (Ms.) viii, 43, and the return of the survey, with map, by James Livingston, deputy surveyor, may be found, ibid, viii, 72. This survey was made in 1721, and the boundaries are given as above.

The Western Boundary of Massachusetts

In 1772, the authorities of New York succeeded in arresting the principal members of a gang of counterfeiters which had for some time infested the debatable territory near the boundary. A number of these were tried, sentenced to death, and executed at Albany, among others one Gill Belcher of Great Barrington, whose workshop tradition affirms to have been the natural hiding-place east of Great Barrington village, since known as Belcher's cave.¹ The counterfeits were of New York currency. They were manufactured in Great Barrington and Sheffield, by Belcher and one Ethan Lewis, and were passed by confederates at convenient points in the vicinity of the boundary.² The arrest of these worthies led to new complications between the two governments, which at least served to emphasize the necessity of establishing a certain and definite line of jurisdiction.

Accordingly in May, 1773, another set of commissioners met at Hartford, at which Tyron and Hutchinson, the royal governors of the respective provinces, were present. A survey which had been made by Mr. Young on the ice the preceding winter was laid before the joint commission, which showed that the general course of Hudson's river between the respective points of intersection of the north and south lines of the Massachusetts patent, was north 21 deg. 10 min. 30 sec. east. When both parties are desirous to agree, there is usually not much difficulty in arriving at a result, and after a very brief discussion this tedious and discreditable controversy, which had now continued for more than a century, was terminated by the execution of a mutual indenture, that the line should be run from "Connecticut old corner" parallel to the general course of Hudson's river, viz; north 21 deg. 10 min. 30 sec. east, as determined by Mr. Young, till it intersected the northern line of the province, which was precisely the boundary which had been recommended by the king's commissioners ninety-nine years before.³

It would seem that when the initial point and direction of the line had been definitely agreed upon, the comparatively simple operation of tracing it upon the ground might have been effected without the further recurrence of captions disputes upon insignificant details, but such was by no means the case. The joint commissioners of the two provinces, accompanied by their respective surveyors and chainmen, met at the "old corner" on the 11th of October following. After running the line on the agreed course about 20 miles northward over the roughest region to be found among the Taconics, a new pretext for contention was found. Major Joseph Hawley, one of the Massachusetts commissioners, happened to discover that the line, which was being run in the usual manner by means of a transit and sight-stakes, would trend a trifle farther east than a line run by the needle, by reason of the progressive increase of the westerly variation as the survey proceeded northward, and he therefore insisted upon altering the course from the beginning. A dispute at once commenced which resulted in the suspension of the work.⁴ Soon after this the troubles immediately preceding the outbreak of the Revolution engrossed public attention to such an extent that nothing further was done in the matter for many years.

On the 25th of September, 1784, another fruitless attempt to run the line was made by a new set of joint commissioners who had been duly appointed by both states. The cause of disagreement this time was in respect to the proper allowance to be made for the change in the declination of the magnetic needle since 1773. After spending some ten days on the spot discussing the subject, and running seven or eight miles of the line, the commissioners were as usual unable to come to any satisfactory agreement, and the work was once more suspended.¹

2. This organization of counterfeiters appears to have been a very extensive one, and to have caused a great deal of trouble both to the inhabitants and to the authorities, all along the New York frontier from Vermont to Long Island Sound.. In the New York Archives, (Vol. xcix, 49-59.) are preserved a number of petitions for executive clemency, in which many interesting and curious facts are incidently disclosed. Among these petitioners are Gil Belcher, above referred to, John Smith (of course), John Wall Lovely and Dr. Joseph Bill. It appears that Lovely and one William Hubbard or Hulbert, a son of Obadiah Hubbard of Enfield, Conn. turned state's evidence against their confederates, which led to their arrest and conviction, and in view of his services in this matter, and of his previous good character, Hubbard was pardoned by Governor Tryon on January 8, 1773. It is probable that most of the others, if not all of them, suffered the penalty of their crimes.

Finally, in 1784, the Massachusetts legislature petitioned Congress for a federal commission. A hearing took place in December of that year, at which both parties were represented,² and measures were taken which resulted in the appointment by Congress of Thomas Hutchins,³ Rev. Dr. John Ewing,⁴ and David Rittenhouse,⁵ as commissioners.⁶ After much legislation and correspondence, the members of the joint commission once more assembled on July 19, 1787, at the "old corner," and after making allowance for the change of variation of the needle since the date of the agreement in 1773, a period of 14 years and 2 months, the line was finally run by transit on a course north 15 deg. 12 min. 9 sec. east (magnetic). The line was found to pass over an exceedingly rough country, and the commissioners did not reach the northwest corner, near Williamstown, until August 4. During the survey the instrumental observations were taken by Rittenhouse and Simon De Witt, and the linear measurements were made by Gerard Bancker. The party consisted of Messrs. Rittenhouse, Ewing, Hutchins, representing the general government, Bancker and De Witt in behalf of New York, and Edwards, Sedgwick and Williams in behalf of Massachusetts, with a number of guides and assistants. The line when completed was found to measure 50 miles, 41 chains and 79 links in length.⁷ The work was performed with such accuracy, that so far as is known, not the slightest dispute has ever arisen in reference to it during the 98 years which have elapsed since its completion.

Was imprisoned in London in 1779, because of his known devotion to the American cause. Soon afterwards he sailed from France to Charleston, S. C. and joined the army under Greene with the title of "geographer general." He published a number of geographical works which were largely used by Dr. Morse in compiling his American Gazetteer. 5. DAVID RITTENHOUSE, F. R. S., LL. D., b. April 8, 1732, near Germantown, Penn., taught himself mathematics while a boy on his father's farm, became a distinguished clock-maker, was employed in connection with Mason and Dixon in 1763, in determining the initial point of their survey, which he did with instruments of his own construction. He settled in Philadelphia in 1770, where he manufactured clocks and mathematical instruments; became president of the Am. Philosophical society on the death of Dr. Franklin in 1791; was a member of Pennsylvania constitutional convention, state treasurer 1777-89; director of the U. S. Mint 1792-5, and was chosen Fellow of the Royal Society in 1795. He was employed in fixing the boundaries of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and other states. D. at Phila., June 26, 1796. - (Barton's Life of Rittenhouse.)

6. Journals of Congress, iv, 607.

7. The journal and field notes of the survey are in Field Book No. 40, in the office of the N. Y. State Engineer and Surveyor, pp. 1-50, and a Ms. map (no. 68 in same office) was copied from the original in the State Department at Washington by Simon De Witt. Another copy is in the Massachusetts Archives, where the writer examined it in 1885. It is well executed, and exhibits the topography for some little distance on each side of the line.

- +334. ix. JOSEPH, b. 19 April 1751; m. (1) Elizabeth Barker, (2) Rhoda (Barker) Cook, widow of his brother Pardon.
- +335. x. RHODA, b. ca. 1754; m. Isaac Barker.

130. JOB⁵ COOK, son of Thomas Cook [51] and his wife Lydia Taylor, was born 11 December 1716 at Tiverton, which until 1747 was in Massachusetts, and died there in January 1775 or shortly before. He was a tailor.

He married, first, ANN BENNETT, probably about 1739. She was the daughter of Robert and Amy (Manchester) Bennett and sister of Mary Bennett, who married Job's brother Joseph Cook. She was living in October 1746 when she was named in the will of her father, but had died by 1755.

Job married, second, at Little Compton 30 September 1755, KEZIA GRINNELL, who was born 18 January 1730, daughter of George and Mercy (Sanford) Grinnell, and died probably about 1763.

He married, third, 21 October 1764, ELIZABETH SISSON of Portsmouth, whose identity has not been learned. She was probably a widow at the time of her marriage to Job, for her father-in-law in the codicil to his will mentioned household goods which she had brought with her. She was living in October 1776 and may have remarried about that time, when she asked to be discharged from administering Job's estate.

On 30 January 1775 Job's father Thomas Cook added a codicil to his will, stating that his son Job was now deceased and that the legacy intended for him should go to "my grandson Daniel Cook son of my said son Job deceased ... Daniel paying all his father's just and lawfull debts that shall be over and above what his father's estate will pay ... after taking therefrom all the household goods my said son Job's last wife Elizabeth Cook brought to him ... which I desire may be returned for her own use forever ... Daniel paying to my said son Job's widow Elizabeth also the sum of twenty-two pounds ten shillings ... to his brothers and sisters the several sums of money hereinafter mentioned ... to Abial Cook thirty pounds, to Elizabeth Woodman wife of Richard Woodman forty five pounds, to Job Cook six pounds, to Rhoda Cook six pounds, to Marcy Cook six pounds, to Timothy Cook six pounds, and to Ellis Cook six pounds ... who are my grandchildren and the children of my said son Job deceased" (Tiverton Probate 4:274-5).

An inventory of Job Cook's personal estate was taken 7 February 1775 by George Cook and Joseph Almy and recorded with the notation that the estate had been shown them by Elizabeth Cook, administrator. On 7 October 1776 when Elizabeth Cook, late wife of Job Cook, asked to be discharged from the administration, Job's brother Joseph Cook was appointed to take charge of goods set off for Elizabeth, and another brother, Jeremiah Cook, was appointed administrator of the estate. The list of claims against it was recorded 7 April 1777, totalling £149:15:1, about £2 more than the value; each claim was figured and paid in proportion. Something remained unsettled on 6 July 1795 when Jeremiah Cook was again named administrator of the estate of Job Cook late of Tiverton, deceased, "which had been unadministered by Elizabeth Cook of Tiverton" (ibid., 3: 207,208,253; 5:35).

Children, (as named in codicil to grandfather's will):

- +336. i. ABIAL⁶, b. ca. 1740; m. (1) Susannah Cole, (2) Anna Lee.
- +337. ii. ELIZABETH, b. ca. 1743; m. Richard Woodman.
- +338. iii. JOB, b. 6 July 1747; m. Freelove Gubbins.
339. iv. DANIEL, b. perhaps ca. 1752, d. after 1780. He served in the Continental Army during the Revolution and is listed in the 1777 military census as an enlisted soldier. He was probably the Daniel Cook in Capt. Christopher Manchester's Company, Col. Smith's Regiment, enlisted 7 Jan. 1777 for 15 months; he signed receipts for his wages at Bristol 25 Aug. 1777, at Poppersquash 31 Dec. 1777, and again at Bristol 31 March 1778, and on 11 April 1779 he signed a receipt for articles consigned to Major Manchester (R.I. Archives, MS records on Revolutionary soldiers).
- On 1 March 1779 Joseph Cook of Dartmouth, as executor of the estate of Thomas Cook, yeoman, late of Tiverton, sold to Daniel Cook of Tiverton for 400 Spanish Milled Dollars ten acres next to land of Jeremiah Cook, this being the southerly part of Thomas Cook's homestead farm. Nine months later, on 1 January 1780, Daniel Cook sold to John Cook of Tiverton land in Puncatest, "part of grandfather Thomas' homestead farm that I bought of Uncle Joseph Cook of Dartmouth", for 1800 Spanish Milled Dollars. On 3 January 1780, called a yeoman, of Tiverton, he sold another piece of land to Gideon Almy (Tiverton Deeds 3:16,24). No further record of him has been found.
- +340. v. RHODA, b. perhaps ca. 1754; m. Edward Taber.
(by second wife, Kezia Grinnell)
341. vi. MERCY, b. ca. 1756, d. probably Dec. 1815 at Fairhaven, Mass. (New Bedford Mercury obit. 5 Jan. 1816); m. Amos Eldridge 19 April 1787 at New Bedford (int. 21 Feb. 1787 Dartmouth). Both were of New Bedford (which was established 23 Feb. 1787 from the easterly part of Dartmouth). Amos was son of Salathiel and Rebecca (Wood) Eldridge, b. 13 Nov. 1759, d. Aug. 1807. According to the will of Mercy's brother Ellis Cook, dated 1831, they had children living at that time.
- +342. vii. TIMOTHY, b. ca. 1758; probably m. ———.
- +343. viii. ELLIS, b. ca. 1760; m. (1) Mary Winter, (2) Elizabeth Earl.

ix. TIMOTHY, b. 1789; m. Eleanor Pickett. Children: JULIA, RHODA, FANNIE, and BARTLETT.

336. ABIAL⁶ COOK, son of Job Cook [130] and his first wife, Ann Bennett, was born about 1740 at Tiverton, which until 1747 was in Massachusetts, and died 11 September 1807, probably at Hoosick, N.Y. (date from Rev. Pension File W18949).

He married, first, Intentions at Dartmouth 2 August 1766, SUSANNAH COLE of Freetown, who died sometime after 13 December 1773. He married, second, at Hoosick (later Stephentown), N.Y., 23 January 1785, ANNA LEE, who was probably the daughter of Josephus and Anna (Tallman) Lee, born ca. 1759, died after 1844. (See Coventry, R.L. VR for earlier clues to this Lee family.)

He evidently attempted to settle in Warren, R.I., for a town council entry there dated 13 December 1773 records the warning out of Abial Cook, his wife Susannah and their children Ann, Betty and Susannah (Calef Papers, RIHS). The 1774 census lists him in Tiverton, with apparently only one daughter then living in the household.

Abial Cook served in the Revolution. He enlisted at Tiverton 29 November 1775 in Capt. Christopher Manchester's company, Col. Richmond's regiment, and later was a private in the regiment commanded by Col. John Topham. He was listed as "sick in hospital" from June 1778 to 20 February 1779 (Revolutionary Service Index, RIA).

He was evidently a tailor, as his father had been. Joseph Lee of Berlin, Rensselaer County, N.Y., stated under oath in 1844 that he had been present at the marriage of his sister Anna to Abial Cook, that Abial "was a tailor by trade, about 5 feet, 7 or 8 inches high with dark hair and eyes and about 45 years of age at the time of his marriage" (Rev. Pension File).

Ed

Abiele [sic] Cook on 30 June 1791 was given a lease on a farm of 62.9 acres in Rensselaerwyck. A "durable lease" on the same property was granted to Stennet [sic] Crandall on 27 April 1801. (Abstracts of Van Rensselaer Leases, N.Y. State Library). Daniel Cook was assigned 43 acres, perhaps part of the same, in 1820 by Stephen M. Crandall (see below).

The 1800 census of New York indicates that Abial and Anna were living at Stephentown, N.Y., with all the children of this marriage at home. The 1810 census lists Widow Cook with three sons in the correct age group, but only one daughter at home.

In 1844, Anna Cook, widow of Abial Cook, then living at Castile, Wyoming County, N.Y., filed application for a pension based on his Revolutionary War services. Included in the file is a statement by the widow, aged 85 years, and one by her brother Joseph Lee, along with a list of her children made about 1814. She was granted a pension of $64.10 per year (Rev. Pension File W18949).

Children:

(by first wife, Susannah Cole; names from Warren Town Council record):

- 735. i. ANN⁷, b. perhaps ca. 1768.
- 736. ii. BETTY, b. perhaps ca. 1770.
- 737. iii. SUSANNAH, b. perhaps ca. 1772.

(by second wife, Anna Lee; information from pension file):

- +738. iv. PHILEMON L., b. 21 Jan. 1786; m. Hannah ---.
- 739. v. JOSEPH, b. 27 May 1789. He joined the Seventh Day Baptist Church at Berlin, N.Y. in 1811 with sister Patty [Martha] (MS Church Records, Berkshire Athenaeum, Pittsfield, Mass.).
- 740. vi. DANIEL, b. 14 July 1791. He joined the Seventh Day Baptist Church at Berlin, N.Y. in 1808, and was probably the Daniel Cook whose marriage to Honor Ellet (?ca 1822 or earlier), appears on an undated list of marriages performed by Elder William Satterlee of Little Hoosac, N.Y., Seventh Day Baptist minister (Typescript, NEHGS and Berkshire Athenaeum). On 30 June 1820 Daniel Cook received a lease on 43 acres in East Manor on assignment from Stephen M. Crandall, and on 11 March 1822 deeded land in Berlin [probably the same] to William C. Barber (Abstracts of Van Rensselaer Leases, N.Y. State Library).
- 741. vii. MARTHA, b. 22 June 1793; as Patty Cook, she joined the Seventh Day Baptist Church at Berlin, N.Y. in 1811 (MS Church Records, Berkshire Athenaeum).
- 742. viii. SALLY ANN, b. 13 April 1798.

337. ELIZABETH⁶ COOK, daughter of Job Cook [130] and his first wife, Ann Bennett, was born ca. 1743 at Tiverton, which until 1747 was in Massachusetts, and died after 1799.

She married, before 1760, RICHARD WOODMAN, who was probably the son of John and Patience (Grinnell) Woodman, born 18 August 1736 at Little Compton, brother of John Woodman who married Susanna Cook [155]. He died before 22 July 1799, when Elizabeth Woodman was given administration on the estate of her husband Richard Woodman, mariner, deceased (Newport Probate 3:147). In his earlier days Richard was evidently a tailor and had apprentices living in his household; Elizabeth's brother Job Cook [338], q.v., gave evidence on Richard's behalf when he was sued by one of his apprentices. The Providence Gazette notice of the death of his daughter Susan refers to him as the late Captain Richard Woodman" (Arnold 13:93).

KEY TO LISTINGS

The accompanying data contains five items of information. First, all names are listed alphabetically by surname. Standard abbreviations have been used for titles of colonel (col), governor (gov), widow (wid or wd), and esquire (esq). All references to junior and senior were standardized to jr and sr, respectively. Original spellings of names as shown in the manuscript were maintained in spite of obvious misspellings.

The second item of information is the town of residence in 1782.

The third item specifies the purpose of the census or tax list. Therefore, the two alphabetical letters following the town of residence are abbreviations for the following:

HS = Household Size	TE = Taxable Estate
HM = Household Member	EV = Estate Valuation

The four columns following HS, EV, or TE assigns a numerical value for each household head. For example, all numbers after EV refer to the value of the person's estate in the English monetary term of pounds; whereas, a number after TE designates shillings of tax owed. The figure following HS indicates the number of people in that household. No number follows HM since that person is already counted in another household.

Whenever the purpose of the census is to designate the household size (HS), item four categorizes the household into age and racial groups and shows the number in each group. For minority groups whose total exceeds 9 people, alphabetical characters are used. The classification is as follows:

Column	Whites	Column	Minorities
1	males age 0-15	10	Indians
2	females age 0-15	11	Mulattoes
3	males age 16-21	12	Blacks
4	females age 16-21	When total in columns 10-12 exceeds 9, then A=10, B=11, C=12, D=13, E=14, F=15, G=16, H=17, I=18, J=19, K=20, L=21, M=22, N=23, O=24
5	males age 22-49
6	females age 22-49
7	males age 50 and up
8	females age 50 and up
9	blank column

Fifth, and in the last columns is the source reference. The first six characters are a key field using town or author surname letters and the year of the record. These characters facilitate identification of the source in the bibliography section. Finally, the digits following the colon refer to the page number of the specified document.
